Antibribery and anticorruption laws

Antibribery and anticorruption laws must be observed in all cases.

Kocher GmbH tolerates neither active corruption by offering nor passive corruption by accepting bribes, benefits, gifts, or promises to obtain a privilege for the company in the form of orders, employment, or other favorable decisions, or for oneself in the form of obtaining benefits or abusing the position.

With respect to gifts and invitations to customers or from suppliers, Kocher GmbH believes that this is acceptable only to the extent that such gifts or invitations are reasonable, infrequent, and offered transparently on occasions that are not likely to affect the course of a business transaction or decision that may influence the activities of Kocher GmbH. Gifts and invitations must never be linked to a specific purpose. Invitations to restaurants must be in connection with special occasions and be within reasonable bounds.

There must be proof of the actual provenance and purpose of every amount.

SUSTAINABILITY AND HUMAN RIGHTS

Sourcing of materials from crisis areas

Even though Kocher GmbH does not maintain production facilities and first and foremost considers itself a service provider, we require that upon procurement of all elements of our products and services, the use and source of the materials be disclosed upon request. As we do not maintain production facilities, our company does not use minerals such as gold, tin, tungsten, or tantalum.

Environmental sustainability

Kocher GmbH gives great importance to reducing the exploitation of resources. Besides compliance with applicable environmental laws, the evaluation and monitoring of the environmental footprint of business activities are expected. The use of substances that are hazardous for humans and nature is to be avoided.

All resources, waste, and emissions must be kept to a minimum. If possible, materials are to be recycled and hazardous substances must be stored or disposed of safely and properly.

We have appointed an employee to ensure that in all departments, only sustainable materials are used, for instance for cleaning our premises. For the procurement and management of our car fleet and office equipment, we take into account both economic and ecological factors.

“Considering the end of everything you do –
that’s sustainability.”

Kocher GmbH is committed to the Declaration of Human Rights adopted by the United Nations and to social and labor standards, especially the internationally agreed core labor standards of the International Labour Organisation (ILO). It is mandatory to comply with the existing laws on the prohibition of child and forced labor, on minimum wages, social-security benefits, overtime, working time, and working conditions. The employment of minors is subject to the strict regulations and definitions of the Youth Employment Protection Act. Kocher GmbH provides its employees with remuneration and other benefits that are at least at the level of equivalent national economic sectors. Pursuant to the applicable legal regulations, membership in trade unions or workers' associations must be permitted to every employee.

It goes without saying that forced labor as well as harassment, mobbing, and discrimination based on gender, racial or ethnic origin, religion, physical disability (we promote inclusion), or any other legally protected characteristic are prohibited. For this reason, healthcare, protection in the workplace, equal rights, fairness as well as protection against discrimination with regard to ethnic origin (protection of indigenous peoples), gender (women's rights, rights of diverse people), and age are of the greatest importance to us. Any incidents of human rights violations, such as racist posts by employees on the internet, that become known to the company management may result in the immediate termination of the work contract.

COMPLIANCE IN THE COMPANY

Health and safety

All laws relating to health and safety must be observed, including valid occupational health and safety guidelines. The provision of a safe and healthy workplace, individual protective equipment, and a medical concept on providing assistance to injured individuals is obligatory. At the very beginning of an employment relationship, we hand out a folder to new employees containing the most important health and safety information. In addition, all employees have easy access to the relevant current legislation. Before they start work, we take new employees on a tour of the premises and inform them about general safety-relevant aspects, such as emergency exits, fire extinguishers, first-aid kits, and assembly points.

At regular intervals, an external safety officer trains our employees on how to comply with all safety-relevant regulations. In addition, we ensure the best possible health protection in the workplace for our staff through company medical care. Before starting work on construction sites or external premises that represents a high safety risk, employees are instructed by a qualified supervisor/representative on the special hazards and on safety protection. Our in-house first aiders provide first-aid care within the company and on construction sites.

Conflicts of interest

All business relationships are expected to be based on integrity and sound judgment. Therefore, immediate disclosure of any conflicts of interest is mandatory. Family ties or other close personal relationships between employees of Kocher GmbH and suppliers must be reported to prevent any potential influence on business decisions the supplier could take advantage of.

Reporting of incidents and retaliatory measures

For Kocher GmbH, the freedom of expression is a valuable asset founded on the Basic Law of the Federal Republic of Germany. However, Kocher GmbH does not tolerate any abuse of this freedom by employees or business partners who comment in writing or verbally in a discriminatory, insulting, or threatening manner on people whose opinions they do not share because of their gender, age, skin color, culture, ethnic origin, sexual identity, religious affiliation, ideology or due to a disability.

These and any other violations of this code must be reported to the company management of Kocher GmbH. Should the subsequently introduced corrective actions not be effective, depending on the situation, consequences extending to the suspension or termination of an employment or business relationship might ensue.

All employees as well as business partners of Kocher GmbH can send information, questions, violations, or any other remarks by mail to codeofconduct@kocher.biz.
